FACTS ABOUT THE COMPETITION

Victoria's top competition for commercial woolgrowers has gone from strength to strength in the second year since it was revamped.

The 1992 Weekly Times RASV Commercial Flock of the Year attracted more than 100 nominations, surpassing the record result of 70 last year.

Such was the interest in the 1992 competition that the north west region had to be split in two so judges could visit all the flocks.

The Weekly Times, Australia's biggest selling rural newspaper, took over the major sponsorship of the competition in 1991 as part of its commitment to sustaining agriculture in Victoria.

Total prizes were boosted to $20,000 this year and with the expected gradual recovery in the wool industry the competition seems headed for an even brighter future.

The Flock of the Year is run by the Royal Agricultural Society of Victoria, the Victorian Agricultural Societies Association and the Department of Food and Agriculture.

BIGPROFIES SIART SMALE

CHEVIOUS WITH THE REASE OF LAMBING WILL-TO-SURVIVE AND RAPID OR SYTEMATES ARE THE WAY TO THE SET TROOTS

HISTORY OF THE CHEVIOT

The name Cheviot comes from Cheviot Hills, a barren, windswept rang of low mountains forming part of the border between England and Scotland. The earliest written records of sheep in Scotland were kept by monks of Kelso Abbe near the Cheviot Hills in the 1120s. They record sheep at Attonburn, a farm in the Cheviot Hills. Cheviots are still bred at Atonburn today.

Official records of Cheviot breeding in Britain began in 1892 with the publication of volume one of the Cheviot sheep Flock Book. Since then over 10,000 stud rams have been registered.

Cheviots were used as foundation stock to produce other breeds in common use today. They were cross with the English Leicester to produce the Border Leicester, and with the Romney to give the Perendale.

Cheviots have been exported from Scotland to all parts of the world. Mr. Jack Walsh of Mount Barker, South Australia, imported the first Cheviots into Australia in 1938. They are now bred in every state except Queensland.

BREED CHARACTERISTICS

The Cheviot is a distinctive white-faced sheep, with a wool free face and legs, pricked ears, black muzzle and black feet. It is very alert active sheep, with a stylish, lively carriage.

In Australia today, the Cheviot has proved its ability to with-stand the cold wet winters of Southern Australia and is a vigorous forager through the hot, dry summers when feed is scarce.

THE JUDGE

The judge the Cheviots as the Feature reed of the 992 Show, the Royal Agricultural Society has invited Mr. Ron Taylor from New Zealand

Ron runs 3000 sheep plus beef cattle on his farm in Mackenzie Country, South Canterbury, where the climate ranges from hot dry summers to snow in winter. Twenty Four inches of snow fell in to days this year.

The "Ardyne" Cheviot flock was founded in 1954 by Ron's father, the Late Mr. S. D. Taylor. Mr. Taylor senior was a Cheviot Council Member, and exported rams to Australia in 1957 and 1958. The Cheviot lock was sold to Mr. Ron Taylor in 1969 who fond a Perendale Stud bed up from his father's Cheviot rams. This Stud has had numerous successes at Royal Shows from the early Seventies up to today.

Ron's judging skills are respected by breeders and other Judges alike. His judging experience includes judging Cheviots, Peredales and interbreed Champions at the New Zealand Royal Shows over several years, in addition to judging at numerous major provincial Shows.

THE FUTURE OF THE CHEVIOT BREED

The future the Cheviot is now particularly changes in the marketplace and increased economic pressures on farmers present renews opportunities for the breed, because of its inherent characteristics.

The task ahead for the Cheviot breeders is to continue to strive to improve those qualities in the Cheviot which are of direct value and appeal to today's sheep farmers, whilst not losing the other basic attributes of the breed. That is, we must continue to breed a bigger, cleaner sheep with a bigger and better quality fleece without losing the hardiness, high fertitlity and low maintenance characteristics of the breed.

New Release ... Weaner Proftril

SmithKline Beecham launched a weaner version of their innovative slow release worming capsule for sheep in early February.

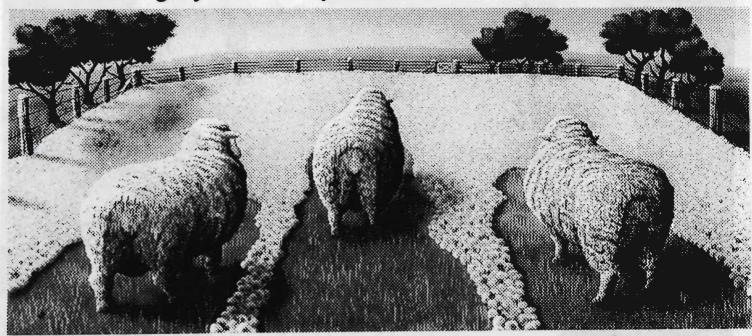

Weaners are particularly susceptible to higher stress levels from "parasitic challenges", which can unduly affect their early growth rates, wool quantity and quality and even subsequent lambing percentages.

Therefore the removal of this "parasitic challenge" reduces a weaners stress and increases nutrient availability. Weaner Proftril is a totally unique system providing 90 days continuous protection against major susceptible parasites such as black scour worm, small brown stomach worm and barbers pole worm.

The new product releases 2.1g of active ingredient (albendazole) over a 90 day period and will be suitable for dosing 20-40kg animals. By comparison the adult dose releases 3.8g of active ingredient over 100 days and is suitable for 35-60kg animals.

SmithKline Beecham urge graziers intending to use either Proftril for adult sheep or Weaner Proftril to consult an animal health adviser or veterinary adviser for the correct administration and usage in a recommended drenching program.

The alternative to counting sheep.

Snuggle under a Bungaree Merino Continental Quilt and you won't need to resort to counting sheep. Because it's filled with a blend of the finest Merino wool and high quality polyester. Together they combine the warmth and cosiness of natural wool with the durability and washability of a proven man-made fibre. Which means you'll get the most natural, uninterrupted night's sleep possible. Without counting a single sheep.
